Transition Planning in the IEP Process

Transition is about planning for life! It includes planning for academic and non-academic courses and learning experiences, employment and related training opportunities, choices about where to live in the community, and what to do for fun and socialization. One of the goals of transition is to help youth have an understanding of their disability and choices to determine their future. One of the ways transition does this is by connecting your child to teachers and other caring adults, support services, and experiences that build skills and help them reach their goals. Transition is based on family values, priorities, and culture, and is focused on an individual child's strengths, interests, preferences, and needs.

The involvement of youth and families is important so that youth can begin to understand themselves and then identify a team of caring adults who will support their journey. A primary rite of passage for all youth is graduating from high school. The beginning of adulthood is celebrated at this time with an expectation that youth will develop an increasing independence and autonomy and move on to further education, meaningful jobs, finding their own places to live, and their own friends, companions, and life in the community.

These are tough but exciting times! As a parent, you have survived many stages of your child's life...the terrible twos, beginning school, those wonderful early adolescent years. You have watched your child's development often with pride and sometimes with frustration. Graduation from high school is fast approaching, whether you are ready or not! This is where transition comes in. You have experienced many transitions or changes in your child's life. This is probably the most difficult transition that the two of you have experienced thus far. Both you and your child are experiencing some strong feelings about this change. As a parent, your advice is invaluable! You have a perspective that no one else can offer. The teachers will have valuable information to share with you, but you have a perspective that no one else can offer.

The Transition Plan: What the Law Says

In 1990, the Federal Government passed a law called the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). One component of this law was the issue of transition of students from the world of school to adult life. The new IDEA 2004 law says that schools must address transition by the age of 16 or earlier if the IEP team deems appropriate.

Tennessee law says that all students who receive special education services must have transition planning included in their IEP (Individualized Education Plan) beginning at age 14 (or younger if appropriate). The IEP must list the student's transition needs and a plan for "instruction and services" to meet those needs. The IEP/Transition Plan must be updated once a year. Here is what the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) says about transition planning:

Children with a disability must have included in their IEP:

- Beginning at age 14 (or younger if appropriate), and updated annually a statement of the student's transition service needs that includes the child's courses of study (such as taking part in advanced placement courses, a vocational education program, etc.)
- Beginning at age 16 (or younger if appropriate) a statement of needed transition services for the child, including when appropriate, a statement of the interagency responsibilities or any need linkages.
- Beginning at least 1 year before the child reaches age 18 a statement that the child has been informed of his or her rights under IDEA, if any that will transfer to the child on reaching age 18

IDEA 2004 at Section 602(34) defines transition services as a coordinated set of activities for a child with a disability that:

- Is designed to be within a results-oriented process, that is focused on improving the academic and functional achievement of the child with a disability to facilitate the child's movement from school to post-school activities, including post-secondary education, vocational education, integrated employment (including supported employment, continuing and adult education, adult services, independent living or community participation.
- Is based on the individual child's needs, taking into account the child's strengths, preferences and interests
- Includes instruction, related services, community experiences, the development of employment and other post-school adult living objectives, and when appropriate, acquisition of daily living skills and functional vocational evaluation.

Transition Planning includes these four components:

1. Employment - What does your child want to do to earn a living and become a productive member of society? How can the school prepare the student for these goals?
2. Post-secondary education and/or training – Where will my child acquire the skills to become what he/she wants? How will he/she pay for it? What agencies will assist him/her in meeting this goal?
3. Independent living – Is my child capable of living independently as an adult? What skills does the student need in order to live as independently as possible?
4. Community Participation – How will my child be involved in the community? Will he/she participate in recreation, church activities, or other organizations? Can he/she get around in the community independently?

How Can Parents Prepare their Child for the Transition Process?

Listen to Your Child's Goals and Dreams

- Focus on their interests and abilities rather than disabilities. Encourage and help them explore their dreams and ideas, even if yours are different.

Help your child learn the skills that he or she will need as an adult.

- Find ways for your child to be independent from a young age. Have them practice self-help skills, and give him or her tasks around
- Allow them to make choices and learn to make wise decisions.
- Teach them to be an advocate for themselves.
- Assist them in developing and practicing social and communication skills needed for work, school, recreation, and friendships.
- Encourage them to become part of the community. Look into after-school and recreational activities, chances to volunteer, and job options.
- Work on IEP goals and objectives at home.

Make the most of the IEP process

- Begin planning early – at least by age 14.
- Encourage your child to be a part of the planning process as much as possible. Make sure he or she is part of team meetings and has the opportunity to provide input. Ask your child's teacher about IEP planning tools that assess interests, aptitudes, learning styles, etc. and provides opportunities for career exploration.

Be prepared for IEP meetings

- You can bring others to your child's IEP meeting (relative, friend, advocate, service provider). They can give moral support, help gather and share information and viewpoints, and even take notes. Talk with the special education supervisor or your child's teacher about who you would like to invite.
- Write down questions and ideas you have, both before and during the meeting. Have a person explain anything that is not clear to you. Get answers to all your questions before the meeting ends. Or get a date when someone will get back to you.
- Think about the goals and objectives in the IEP/transition plan. Will they prepare your child for adult life, such as living and working in the community? Do not feel pressured to make decisions on the spot.
- Before you leave the meeting, make sure you know what will happen next, such as when you will get the finalized IEP and who the contact person is.

<h2>The Role of the Parent</h2>

During your child's transition year, you might have to play many roles, including these:

- Become an active IEP team member
- Prepare for and attend all IEP meetings and the Transition IEP meeting (See checklist at end of this packet for a checklist on how to prepare for a meeting)
- Think about questions to ask the teachers and school staff at the meeting (See checklist at end of this packet for a list of possible questions)
- Ask about diploma options
- Review the IEP/Transition checklist before the IEP meeting. Check off during the meeting. (See checklist at end of packet)
- Read and know what the law says about transition

- Encourage your child to attend and participate in the IEP meeting
- Ask questions if you do not understand any part of the IEP meeting

2. Share what you know about your child

You can share important information about your child's personal traits, interests, likes, and dislikes. Be clear about your child's abilities at IEP meetings and transition planning meetings.

3. Be a Role Model

Let your child know that he or she can become as independent as possible. Give your child chores around the home, and focus on good grooming, physical fitness, and good social and communication skills.

4. Be a case manager

You will need to make sure that the goals of the transition plan are fully met. This can be hard if your child's need for service continues after his or her school years. It's likely you will have to work with many different people and agencies to get the adult services and supports your son or daughter needs.

5. Encourage job and career exploration at school and at home

You and your child's teachers need to talk with the student about the many career choices and rewards of work. Talk to your son or daughter about your own job and other jobs and careers, and have him or her explore hobbies, which use skills and tools related to his or her job interests. Find out about School-to-Career, summer jobs, and other programs in your school and community.

6. Work for more and better supports

You and your child must keep working with service providers, employers, and policy makers to create more choices for students with special needs.

7. Let your son or daughter take risks

You might have mixed feelings about your son or daughter becoming more independent. You might know that letting go is the best thing, but it can be hard to let your child take the risks that go with independence. It helps to stay focused on your child's abilities.

8. Be a financial planner

Often when young people with disabilities work or get money from others, this can change their cash payments from programs like SSI. Talk to professionals about how your son or daughter's job, savings, and things like trusts and inheritance might affect this, and make plans for it.

9. Become involved in your child's school.

One of the most important things a parent can do is get to know the school staff, both the regular and special education staff. Find out about all school services, including a regular education and after school activities (such as sports and clubs). Get to know the people involved in the activities that interest your child. Join the Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO/PTA), the special education local advisory committee (LAC), or the School Improvement Team. Share ideas with other parents about creating and getting access to inclusive programs and activities.

10. Start planning now for adult services and supports

- ✓ Learn about the different programs and services that are available for your child now and when he or she gets older which will help them be independent and be part of the community. Figure out what supports your child now gets that will need to be continued in the future. Find out what agencies can provide these supports. Invite any agencies that might offer transition or adult services to your child to the IEP/Transition plan meeting. Begin financial planning for your child's adult life. At age 17, look into applying for SSI (Supplemental Security Income). Find out about Ticket to Work plans and other Social Security programs. Find out about how adult services will be paid for. Think about estate planning and guardianship issues. Your child is not necessarily entitled to adult services unless he/she meets the criteria for the specific program to which he/she is applying

11. Keep good records

Before the student leaves school, get copies of all high school transcripts, evaluations, tests, and reports. Write down notes on each meeting and phone conversation to include the name of the agency, contact person and date. Keep a copy of all letters between you and agencies. Keep everything organized in file folders or three-ring notebooks. Keep records of any on-the-job training reports or other work experiences the student has had. Get letters of recommendation from the employer, teachers, or job coaches.

12. Become an advocate

Get to know the laws covering education and disability issues (ADA, IDEA, Rehabilitation Act). Also, get to know your decision-makers and lawmakers.

Transition Plan Timeline

You and your child may wish to think about many of the items below when you prepare transition plans with your IEP team. Not all of them may apply to your child, and there may be other areas important to you that are not listed here.

4 to 5 years before exiting high school –

1. School and work

- Know how you learn best and what accommodations you need to do well in school and at work
- Explore your job and career interests and skills. Complete interest and career inventories, and think about other schooling or training you would need

- Look into college or continuing education schools or programs and their admission requirements
- Start financial planning (financial aid for college or continuing education)
- Save samples of your best school work and achievements
- Explore opportunities to volunteer in the community
- Take part in informational interviews or job shadowing experiences.

2. Community Living

- Think about where and how you would like to live, and supports you would need to do this
- Begin learning skills you'll need for independent living
- Look into assistive technology that can make it easier to have a job and be part of your community
- Become more involved in your community and make new friends
- Look into and learn to use public transportation (like buses)
- Look into driver's education when the time is right for you
- Think about the skills you'll need for taking care of your money (budgeting, savings, checking account)
- Get a state identification card and learn when and how to give out personal information
- Learn and practice personal care

3. Supports

- Determine your need for income support and health care support like SSI (Social Security Income), Independent Living Services and Medicaid.
- Work with your parents on setting up trusts, if needed.
- Practice how to communicate best with others at work, at school, with friends, and in the community.
- Make plans to be sure you will still have the assistive technology you need after you leave high school.

4. Being your own advocate

- Learn to make clear to others your interests, wishes, and needs.
- Be able to explain your abilities and disabilities and any accommodations you might need.
- Learn and practice how to make informed decisions.

2 to 3 years before exiting high school –

1. School and work

- Match career interests and skills with vocational (job-related) courses and work experiences in the community
- Seek summer employment (intern in your career interest area)
- Begin a resume and make changes to it as needed

- Learn more about colleges and other adult education schools and programs, and the support services they offer. Make plans for accommodations to take college entrance exams and complete applications. Find out what options are available for financial aid and scholarships.
- Take part in job shadowing experiences that are offered.
- Complete an application with the state's Division of Rehabilitation Services to see if you are eligible for services from them.

2. Community Living

- Learn about community supports offered by community and state agencies.
- Invite adult service providers, friends, and others to the IEP/Transition meeting.
- Learn independent living skills such as budgeting, shopping, cooking, and housekeeping
- Determine what personal assistant services you need and how to manage these services.
- Choose health care providers and learn about sexuality and family planning.
- Visit a variety of adult support agencies. Ask questions about services they could provide or could create to meet your needs.

3. Supports

- Determine your need for income support and health care support like SSI (Supplemental Security Income), Independent Living Services and Medicaid.
- Work with your parents on setting up trusts if needed.
- Practice how to communicate best with others at work, at school, with friends, and in the community.
- Make plans to be sure you will still have the assistive technology you need after you leave high school.

4. Being your own advocate

- Look into legal status of decision-making before you become a legal adult
- Learn about the laws that affect the rights of people with disabilities, Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), Rehabilitation Act, etc.

1 year before exiting high school –

1. School and work

- Choose and get a job, along with any supports needed
- Learn to be on time for work, appointments, and social activities.
- Make plans for how you will get to school, work, etc. (bus, car, friends)
- Get copies of transcripts and other important records from your school before you graduate
- Write your resume and get letters of recommendation from your teachers before you graduate

- Choose the college or adult education school or program you plan to go to and make plans with the school for accommodations

2. Community Living

- Make detailed plans for living on your own if that's your goal. Keep practicing your independent living skills.
- Learn to take care of your health care needs (make appointments, fill and take prescriptions, etc.).
- Make a list of people and agencies that can help you if problems come up.

3. Being your own advocate

- Work on communication skills and self-advocacy skills (standing up and speaking up for yourself)
- Become involved with advocacy and support groups

4. Supports

- Make sure you have in place income and health care support programs you might need (SSI, Independent Living Services, Medicaid).
- Build detailed plans of supports you will need with adult service agencies.
- Begin transitioning into your new adult service plan.

Guardianship/Conservatorship and the Age of Majority

Beginning at least one year before the age of majority, the IEP process must include a statement that the student and his or her parents have been informed of his or her rights and that these rights will transfer to the student upon reaching the age of majority. Educational rights that transfer to the student at age 18 are:

- Receive notice of and attend individual education program (IEP) meetings.
- Consent to reevaluation
- Consent to change placement
- Request for medication or a due process hearing to resolve a dispute about evaluation, identification, eligibility, IEP, placement, or other aspects of a free appropriate public education (FAPE).

In the state of Tennessee, a minor reaches the age of majority on his or her 18th birthday. Upon attaining the age of majority, all rights and privileges of an adult are granted to this individual allowing the 18 year old to legally make decisions about personal affairs, including educational matters.

An individual who turns 18 is no longer legally subject to the authority of his or her parents. This is also true for an individual that has a disability regardless of the level of functioning. In order for someone to make decisions on behalf of an individual with disabilities who has turned 18, a caring adult (which may or may not be the parent) must obtain a court order granting him or her conservatorship and/or guardianship. To apply for a guardianship/conservatorship, contact the probate division of the circuit court in your local county or an attorney of your choice. Guardianship and conservatorship allow the parent or individual appointed by a court to make legally binding decisions on behalf of an adult child, who may not possess the functional or mental capability to do so independently.

Checklist to Prepare for the Transition/IEP meeting

- ✓ Complete the enclosed student /parent questionnaire with your child.
- ✓ Be prepared to share this questionnaire with your child's IEP team.
- ✓ Bring suggestions to meetings on what actions you feel are needed to meet or move toward goals in the transition plan.
- ✓ Make yourselves familiar with the various roles and functions of team members.
- ✓ Become aware of who is responsible for what services.
- ✓ Become aware of timeliness for completion of goals.
- ✓ Be supportive of your child's transition program.
- ✓ Participate in and reinforce the activities in the classroom and community that will prepare and help your child succeed in the adult world.
- ✓ Promote appropriate behavior.
- ✓ Teach and reinforce good grooming habits.
- ✓ Teach money management skills.
- ✓ Parents have a right to transition services included in their child's IEP while in school. The parent's right to transition services transfer to their child at the age of majority (18) unless conservatorship has been legally established

Transition IEP Checklist

Use this checklist to see whether or not your child's IEP meets the requirement of IDEA (the Federal law covering education for students with disabilities) and Tennessee Special Education Regulations.

- ✓ Did your child take part in developing the Transition Plan and IEP? If not, were steps taken to ensure your child's needs and interests were considered in the plan?
- ✓ Are the annual goals and objectives in the IEP based on your child's needs?
- ✓ Were staff members of agencies, which might be providing or paying for transition services invited to the IEP/Transition meeting? If the invited agencies did not send any staff members, did the team take other steps to make sure the agencies took part?
- ✓ Does the IEP/Transition Plan include your child's long-range goals in employment, post secondary education and training independent living, and community participation?
- ✓ Is the course of study in the IEP what your child needs to reach the long-range goals?
- ✓ Are the annual goals and objectives designed to help your child reach the long-range goals?
- ✓ If there are not annual goals and objectives related to the long-range goals this year, is the reason written in the IEP?

- ✓ Did the team include in the IEP: instruction, related services, community experiences, the creation of employment and other post-school, adult living objectives and, when appropriate; acquiring daily living skills and functional/vocational evaluation
- ✓ Were assessments begun at age 14? Are assessments reviewed once a year and are the results used in development of transition goals>
- ✓ Was the need for assistive technology in transition considered?
- ✓ Did the IEP team meet again if the responsibilities of other agencies identified in the IEP were not met?
- ✓ For students turning 17, did the team talk about the transfer of rights?
- ✓ Did the school arrange for an interpreter if you do not speak English?

Questions you might ask as the Transition/IEP meeting

Questions for Secondary School Personnel:

- What are the career and vocational objectives on my child's IEP?
- Will my child participate in job training, if appropriate?
- On what social skills does the IEP team think my child needs to work?
- What vocational classes do you suggest that my child participate in?
- What types of vocational assessments are administered to determine my child's interests and strengths?
- Will my child be taught functional math and reading?
- What functional activities contribute to independence?

Questions for Post Secondary/Vocational Training or Education Programs:

- What training programs are offered?
- What is the length and cost of the program?
- What are the entry requirements of the program?
- What support services are available for him/her?
- How and where can financial assistance be obtained?
- What is the application procedure?
- Do you provide assistance in locating a job when my child finishes your program?

Questions for Adult Service Agencies:

- What programs and services are offered by your agency?
- What types of disabilities do you serve?
- How do you determine eligibility?
- What is the cost for your program? Can financial assistance be obtained and, if so, whom do I contact?
- Is there a waiting list for your program? If so, how long?
- Who is the contact person?
- How old does my child have to be to receive your services?
- What is the duration of the services?
- What is my role and level of involvement?
- Do you offer individual and family counseling?
